I object to splitting of knutsford in this way. It's a small town and things that happen in all parts of town affect everyone. The town should remain as one to avoid creating division in the community. Remaining as one will help create a common vision for the town. We should try to reduce the division, not increase it.

The Labour Party have been out on weekends trying to convince that this is a good idea as they think they are more likely to elect a labour councillor this way. They were not interested in the views of those with a differing view on the proposal such as keeping the town together as one, or even moving the proposed boundary. I'm not conceived the proposal is even made with the overall benefit of the community in mind but rather their own personal ambitions. I disagree strongly with splitting the town like this and leading to more division of the community.
