Related subject: Millom

I am writing to submit my view on the above.

I live in Drigg and Carleton parish area and within the millom without electoral ward. The millom without ward is rural and a mixture of areas within the lake District national park or on the fringe of the national park. Half of our parish lies within the national park. So I feel our parish relates to the rest of the ward. I don't feel it would relate to the larger villages and towns to the north of us.

Within millom without ward we are also similar in our rural industry, services and infrastructure throughout the ward, facing similar problems and needs.

Our current ward councillor is excellent and while the population of this ward maybe slightly lower than others it does cover a larger area and a large number of parish's so I feel it is currently fairly represented. I would like millom without ward to remain the same.

I feel the extra councillors should be concentrated in the larger towns, to counteract the increased demand of issues associated with urban areas, although I do appreciate that resident numbers should be as equal as possible.

There is the question of do we need more councillors? I'd say no due to the cost involved. I'd prefer the wards to be left as they are .
