It is likely that soon Holgate will become too large due to York Central development. In advance of this Acomb Ward should be moved further east (possibly to Water End) to increase that to three members, while Westfield should move east along Hamilton Drive towards West Bank Park, and could potentially move as far east along the south side of Hamilton Drive as Hollybank Road so that Holgate is shifted north to take in York Central an the traditional Holgate core area. It could then become a two member ward in advance of being a three member ward when York Central is developed. This may necessitate the movement of the west side of Westfield into either Rural West or Dringhouses and Woodthorpe, though I have less experience of that border. While I have served as a Holgate councillor in the past I can state that these are my own views and I have not consulted with anyone associated with the related wards or political parties.
