Related subject: Redland and Ashley Wards

The current boundary between Redland and Ashley Wards is the Gloucester Road. Redland has approx 10,000 voters and Ashley has about 14,000. Gloucester Road is a vibrant high street and a natural community with specific high street environment issues and identity which have little relevance to Ashley Councillors because it is separated from the Ashley community by a railway line and a steep hill. My suggestion would be to move the boundary between the two wards from the middle of Gloucester Road towards the railway line. This would better balance the voter numbers and better reflect the different interests and identities of the two wards.
