Related subject: Boundary changes Broomhill/Crookes/Crosspool

Our house has been flipped between three Council wards and two constituencies in thirty years.
Our whole street was once in one ward- Broomhill/Hallam, then half and half along its Crookes/Central length, then one ward again Broomhill/Central and now split along the road again Crookes/Hallam.

The constituency boundaries changes are not the same and changes lagged behind ward changes.

Our group of houses and flats that keep flipping have a population of less than 50.

Do these changes have to be so frequent and so micro? Why is the postcode irrelevant?
