Gleadless Valley has been in decline for years and it is not represented by their councillors due to the ward split.
The Meersbrook / Heeley part of the ward is very different, more affluent, and doesn't face the same issues as Gleadless valley. So what we have is Green councillors elected who have no affinity with one half of their ward, and have done nothing useful for years for the Gleadless valley community - their focus is elsewhere.
I think the ward demographic splits in the Heeley Green area, and there should be a boundary in that area separating Heeley and Meersbrook from Gleadless Valley. If boundaries could be re-drafted to bring in constituents from Park & Arbourthorne and possibly Birley, then there's a chance that Gleadless Valley could start to get councillor representation that understands and supports the people who live in their part of the ward.
