It seems to me that having 3 councillors for one ward, each of whom is elected separately in 3 elections spread over 4 years leads to one party winning all 3 seats in that ward, particularly in Fulwood, but also in other wards. In Fulwood we have been represented by 3 LibDems for many years. I cannot see the benefits of having so many elections, although I do see a benefit to having multi seat wards. Why can't we have one council election every 4 years, with the possibility that this could increase the turnout and have wards represented by a broader range of representatives.
